*How many roads must a man walk down
Before you call him a man?*

*How many seas must a white dove sail
Before she sleeps in the sand?*

*How many times must the cannonballs fly
Before they're forever banned?*

*How many times must a man look up
Before he can see the sky?*

How many years must one man have Before he can ear people cry?

*How many deaths will it take till he knows
That too many people have died?*

*How many years can a mountain exist
Before it's washed to the sea?*

*How many years can some people exist
Before they're allowed to be free?*

*How many times can a man turn his head
Pretending he just doesn't see?*

*The answer, my friend, is blowin' in the wind,
The answer is blowin' in the wind.*

Dedication

It is with the utmost sincerity that the Senior class dedicates its final literary work to the theme of Universal Peace.

From the conception of our lives, we have seen the world as a composite of suffering and devastation. Now we stand on a threshold, a threshold on which man teeters between peace and total destruction of all that God has to offer. As future citizens of the world we must take upon us the task of creating a more meaningful definition of the term, "Universal Peace."

Contrary to the basic assumption, we are not the body without the soul, but the soul within the body. By no means do we consider ourselves so powerful that we could change the world by the wave of a hand.

With the knowledge our forefathers have instilled in us we shall create a better world in which to live.

Down through the ages man has passed much more than just the materialistic articles which we hold most dearly to our hearts.

We have been most gratefully instilled with the wisdom of great men before us: it is through this wisdom that we shall conquer the Universe.

In Memoriam

April 10, 1951—October 25, 1968

Like a chariot afire
He glides down to his bed where
Dusk waits patiently to protect him.
This is the end.

Then again, slowly, he rises.
To ride across his kingdom
And enlighten this world.
This is the beginning.

Principal's Message

We live in an era of cliches. At one time teachers and students were "dedicated and devoted." Now, they are "involved and committed." What was once an "attitude or position" is now a "posture or stance." "Conversations and discussions" have become "confrontations and dialogues."

But the greatest cliche, tabbed as "the generation gap," is the failure of the generations to "communicate." The generations have much to contribute to each other, this can be accomplished only if we pull back the "cliche curtain" and examine what each has to offer. It is sheer folly for us to allow a cliche to become a convenient substitute for critical self-analysis and careful evaluation for change.

Superintendent's Message

To the Class of 1969

Some time ago, two men had the urge to build houses. Both had a choice of materials and access to similar construction. One constructed his house with the best of materials and, exercising great patience, made certain that all components were joined securely. The other used inexpensive materials and took little time to erect his home. You know how the story ended; the first withstood the ravages of time, while the second was a constant source of trouble for the owner.

A parallel may be drawn in education. As you leave Raymond Consolidated School, you take with you a basic life structure. The community has made available to you the tools, materials, and knowledge necessary to build. The kind of an educational framework that you built depended in great measure upon what you did with the resources at hand. If you made the most of the instruction that was offered, you constructed a durable edifice; if your workmanship was poor, the price of maintenance will run high. In this instance, the use of the word maintenance is best defined in terms of job success and satisfaction, personal happiness, and your contribution to society. These will come relatively easier to the individual who has planned well and worked diligently, than to that person who has not done so.

However, there is still an opportunity for one to strengthen his position in life. This may come in the form of determination and the will to succeed. Whatever it is, it can be developed within one's self, but it requires self-reliance, integrity, purpose and perspiration. There may be a lot of catching up to do, but every bit of progress will add that much more to one's stature as a member of society.

He jumps higher than most

GOL-L-L-Y!

New Country C. inflates

Oh well! It wasn't that important anyway.

Ve-e-ry
interesting

Is Rick the only

New York - November

New York
November
just like it will cure
any illness

Are you gonna eat that stuff?

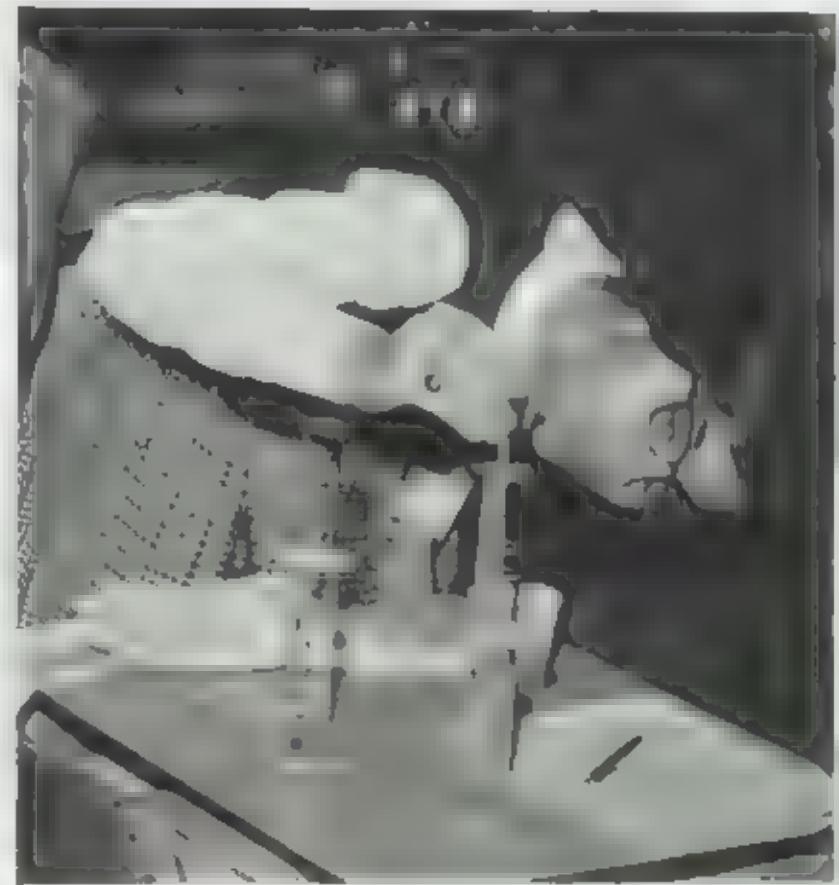

Dusting—ain't it

You devil—you!

What mountain?

You're crowding me!

Big Pile

Who threw that clay?

That old gang of Bob's

Drink up!!

The Eye!

She broke her long hill.
